REPORT TO THE LOUISIANA LEGISLATURE
IN RESPONSE TO SR NO. 111 OF THE 2013 REGULAR SESSION

Senate Resolution No. 111 of the 2013 Regular Session urges and requests the Louisiana State Law Institute “to perform a comprehensive study of Louisiana bail laws and procedures and to make recommendations as necessary for modernization of bail practices.” In fulfillment of this request, the Law Institute created a Bail Bond Procedure Revision Committee and placed it under the direction of Reporter Judge Guy Holdridge. The Committee is comprised of individuals who are involved in various aspects of bail bond procedure, including members of the judiciary, both at the trial and appellate level, academia, the prosecution and the defense bar, the bail bond industry, and the Department of Insurance.

According to the Resolution, “current laws providing bail and bail bond requirements, procedures, and references are scattered in numerous locations throughout Louisiana criminal and civil law”. As a result, “these criminal and civil laws should be comprehensively studied to determine the need for revisions that will produce best practices satisfying the constitutional requirements of Article I, Section 18, while enhancing legal and judicial economy, efficiency, fairness, and uniformity in the criminal justice system”.

At its initial meetings, the Committee considered research and identified issues and deficiencies under current law in order to prioritize the issues that it would need to consider. During this time, the Committee discussed the numerous and complex issues plaguing Louisiana bail laws and procedures and considered implementing all of the following improvements: having bond forfeiture procedures comply with civil procedure; simplifying those procedures and consolidating them in one place; delaying recordation of the judgment of bond forfeiture until after the forfeiture hearing, followed by a short period for suspensive appeal; eliminating unnecessary and premature bond forfeitures; authorizing each judicial district to set up, by local rule, a cash bond system; requiring an affidavit stating the reasons for surrendering the defendant; making it easier to determine whether a bench warrant for the defendant has been issued, and if so, when; authorizing the use of a split bond, permitting the defendant to satisfy the bail obligation by using a combination of commercial, personal, or property bond; authorizing the defendant to initially pay a certain amount of the bail upfront, then pay the remainder over a period of time; and assuring that the failure to meet deadlines in the bond forfeiture process will result in a meaningful consequence.

The Committee began its process of modernizing Louisiana bail laws and procedures by making extensive substantive revisions to the Code of Criminal Procedure articles in Title VIII on forfeiture as well as a few related provisions in the Revised Statutes. The Committee spent over a year studying these articles and statutes, identifying their numerous deficiencies, and submitting proposals to amend them in a way that would “produce best practices” in the criminal justice system. The Committee proposed various amendments to the forfeiture articles in Title
VIII as well as other related provisions, including substantive revisions with respect to definitions, failure to appear, the issuance and notice of a warrant for arrest, the period for filing a rule to show cause and the proof necessary for doing so, nonforfeiture situations, and the notice, recordation, and enforcement of judgments.

The Committee presented its proposal to revise the Code of Criminal Procedure articles in Title VIII on forfeiture and other related provisions to the Council at its May 2015 meeting. The Council largely adopted the Committee’s proposals as presented, making technical amendments and clarifications to some of the revised articles as needed. However, the Council voted to recommit a few issues for further consideration by the Committee, including nonforfeiture situations, discharge of the bail bond obligation, enforcement of judgments, and the applicable effective dates. Nevertheless, the Committee’s extensive revisions to the procedure for and collection of bond forfeitures were mostly approved and provide as follows.

Under current law, a warrant is issued and a bond is forfeited at the time the defendant fails to appear, but the judgment of bond forfeiture is not collectable until 180 days later. In other words, if the defendant appears or is surrendered within the 180-day time period, the judgment of bond forfeiture is set aside. Under this procedure, hundreds of judgments of bond forfeitures are rendered that will never be collectable because the defendant appears or is surrendered within the 180-day time frame. The Committee’s proposed revision eliminates the rendering of these unnecessary judgments in that, at the time the defendant fails to appear, only a warrant will be issued, and if the defendant appears or is surrendered within 180 days, the warrant will be recalled. In other words, the Committee decided that a judgment of bond forfeiture should only be issued after the expiration of the 180-day time period, and the Committee determined that the rendering of this judgment can be accomplished through a rule to show cause. The Committee believes that its proposed revision will significantly reduce the paperwork and expense associated with forfeiting a bond and as a result, the Committee revised the articles on bond forfeiture and other related provisions to implement the new procedure.

However, Senate Resolution No. 111 of the 2013 Regular Session also provides that the Law Institute’s study of Louisiana bail laws and procedures “should include all aspects of the bail and bail bond process set forth in both criminal and civil laws, including granting and fixing of bail for adult and juvenile offenders, types of bail, the sufficiency, types and financial solvency of surety, procedures, requirements and time periods applicable to the bail undertaking process, the ability to meet financial bail obligations, release on bail, bail hearings, conditions of bail, bail bonds, bail enforcement, surrender of the defendant and actions for violation of the bail order, revocation and forfeiture of bail, issuance of arrest warrants, bond forfeiture proceedings, judgments and appeals, and legal forms, documents, and notices utilized in the bail and bail bond process.”

As a result, after its initial presentation to the Law Institute Council in May of 2015, the Committee reconvened to study not only those issues that had been recommitted by the Council, but also the remainder of the Articles in Title VIII of the Code of Criminal Procedure on bail. (The Committee determined that provisions on juvenile bail procedure would be referred to the Law Institute’s Children’s Code Committee following enactment of the revisions to adult bail procedure.) The Committee also concluded that in order to comply with its charge in 2013 SR to modernize Louisiana bail laws and procedures in a way that would enhance legal and judicial economy, efficiency, fairness, and uniformity in the criminal justice system, the Code of Criminal Procedure articles on bail needed to be consolidated and reorganized. The Committee met numerous times over the course of the year to accomplish this goal, and it ultimately concluded that the 61 current Code of Criminal Procedure articles on bail should be consolidated into 32 articles. The Committee also received and considered several different reorganization proposals for the articles in Title VIII, and it eventually decided upon a proposal that first sets out the right to bail, the authority to fix bail, schedules of bail, and factors in fixing bail, followed by articles dealing with conditions of bail, types of bail and restrictions on bail, types of sureties, and the requirements of the bail undertaking, and finally provisions on failure to appear, nonforfeiture situations, notice, recordation, and enforcement of judgment, and appeals.

As these articles were reorganized, the Committee also made substantive amendments in addition to its proposed revisions with respect to bond forfeiture with a view toward modernizing Louisiana bail laws and procedures. In addition to determining the need for a definitions article, the Committee decided to treat misdemeanor bail schedules in the same manner as felony bail schedules. The Committee also amended the article concerning pretrial service providers to apply to all agencies providing pretrial services, rather than only to those that are nonprofits. With respect to the use of juvenile records, the Committee removed the provision allowing disciplinary action against the court and added a provision prohibiting communication between the defendant and the victim, as well as the victim’s family, while the case is pending. The Committee also added language in the provision concerning declaration of residence to provide for those who do not speak English and for the use of electronic notice. With respect to the discharge of a bail obligation, the Committee determined that a surety may file an affidavit requesting to be relieved of the bail obligation after the defendant has failed to appear. The Committee also decided to add language to provide for a contradictory hearing to establish proof of death when a death certificate cannot be obtained.

A copy of 2013 SR 111, along with proposed legislation, is attached.
A RESOLUTION

To urge and request the Louisiana State Law Institute to perform a comprehensive study of Louisiana bail laws and procedures and to make recommendations as necessary for modernization of bail practices.

"(A) Excessive bail shall not be required. Before and during a trial, a person shall be bailable by sufficient surety, except when he is charged with a capital offense and the proof is evident and the presumption of guilt is great. After conviction and before sentencing, a person shall be bailable if the maximum sentence which may be imposed is imprisonment for five years or less; and the judge may grant bail if the maximum sentence which may be imposed is imprisonment exceeding five years. After sentencing and until final judgment, a person shall be bailable if the sentence actually imposed is five years or less; and the judge may grant bail if the sentence actually imposed exceeds imprisonment for five years.

WHEREAS, Section 18 prohibits excessive bail and further mandates that before and during a trial a person shall generally be bailable by sufficient surety, except as otherwise provided in the Section; and

WHEREAS, current laws providing bail and bail bond requirements, procedures and references are scattered in numerous locations throughout Louisiana criminal and civil law, including the Louisiana Code of Criminal Procedure, Criminal Code, Children’s Code, and Titles 13, 15, 22, 29, 32, 39, 46, and 56 of the Louisiana Revised Statutes of 1950; and

WHEREAS, these criminal and civil laws should be comprehensively studied to determine the need for revisions that will produce best practices satisfying the constitutional requirements of Article 1, Section 18, while enhancing legal and judicial economy, efficiency, fairness and uniformity in the criminal justice system; and
WHEREAS, the study should further determine if revisions to these criminal and civil laws are necessary to eliminate inconsistencies and ambiguity in current wording in order to achieve such best practices and a consistent body of law; and

WHEREAS, such study should include all aspects of the bail and bail bond process set forth in both criminal and civil laws, including granting and fixing of bail for adult and juvenile offenders, types of bail, the sufficiency, types and financial solvency of surety, procedures, requirements and time periods applicable to the bail undertaking process, the ability to meet bail financial obligations, release on bail, bail hearings, conditions of bail, bail bonds, bail enforcement, surrender of the defendant and actions for violation of the bail order, revocation and forfeiture of bail, issuance of arrest warrants, bond forfeiture proceedings, judgments and appeals, and legal forms, documents and notices utilized in the bail and bail bond process.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that no later than February 1, 2014, the findings of such study to date shall be submitted in a report to the Senate together with any recommendations in the form of specific proposed legislation.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that a copy of this Resolution be transmitted to the director of the Louisiana State Law Institute.
